

Alpha Regional Coach

About the Role

Reporting to the Engagement and Team Manager, the role of Regional Coach is to equip and serve local churches, Alpha course leaders, and volunteers through coaching and training, enabling them to run Alpha and use Alpha resources effectively.

Regional Coaches train church teams online and in person and need to be comfortable presenting to both large and small groups. They assess and respond to the needs of each individual church, ensuring teams get the training and support required, thus supporting Alpha's mission.

Areas of responsibility include:

- Developing and managing strong working relationships with church leaders and related ministries
- Providing full training sessions on Alpha and its resources
- Tailoring trainings to each church and its community without deviating from the core Alpha recipe
- Providing regular feedback to improve the way we serve churches
- Attending local, regional, and international meetings when required
- Meet weekly and monthly targets for coaching and training sessions

About You

We're looking for an experienced people leader who is confident presenting a range of training and coaching opportunities to small and large groups. You will need excellent time management, the ability to think on your feet, and passion to equip and develop a broad range of Christian church denominations. As well as all that, you will need:

- Experience and passion for Alpha
- The ability to engage and build relationships at all levels
- Flexibility and adaptability with a positive attitude
- Speaking, writing, and listening skills
- Presenting skills both online and in person
- Experience using Microsoft Suite
- Experience using CRM and Alpha resources, and a knowledge of non-profit organisations are advantageous but not essential
- A mature Christian serving in your local church community

Role Requirements

- Reports to the Engagement and Team Manager
- 30 hours per week, Monday to Thursday
- Occasional evening and weekend work required
- National and regional travel from time to time
- Three-year agreement which may or may not be renewed 2 months prior to initial employment anniversary date
- Laptop, travel expenses, and contribution towards mobile expenses will be covered by Alpha

If this sounds like you, apply today with a resume and tailored cover letter, specifying which region you want to apply for.
